EARLY CONNECTICUT MARRIAGES.

FIFTH BOOK.

1128238

When some six years ago we commenced the publication of this series it did not seem possible that there ever would be a call for a fifth book. The venture was made with strange misapprehension of the real nature of that interest which the American people was supposed to have in the question of ancestry. Fortunately for us, however, the value of our effort was greatly underestimated. Likewise, too, had we but faintly conceived the extent and intensity of that devotion to the study whose best encouragement came from such contributions as our own.

In the natural course of things this historic state of Connecticut has turned out a good many people. The numerous generations since the first settlement have been very prolific. Large families were the rule. Had all the children and the children's children remained at home and in the little commonwealth it would have found us somewhat cramped for room and with serious problems to face. Fortunately as it was, however, the spirit of the times, the opportunities which fresh discovery of new fields brought, a love of adventure not unmixed with an increasing love of gain and enterprise, all these and more led these Connecticut born into Central and Western Massachusetts, up the great river into far away Vermont, over into New York, just across the border and later into the rich and fertile territory of Central and Western New York, Ohio, and portions of Pennsylvania. From these parts they spread out to every section of our country, contributing their good share to its betterment and upbuilding. Ultimately without loss of the high endeavor which inspired them from the first, lacking in some essential portions of the story of emigration, they rightly seek now to complete that interesting work.

Our humble effort, therefore, has not been without goodly fruitage if it has aided in this intention. Indeed are very sure that since these issues have appeared, the name of Connecticut has become dearer and more dear to many scattered everywhere who before never betook themselves to a study of its ancient glories.

And as to that be it said with convincing truthfulness that to one who loves genealogical research it is a new and a lasting glory to surely find the state and the particular place where first our own people made themselves a permanent abiding place. The very spot where once that early ancestor lived, toiled, suffered, died, its surroundings and environment, all things thereabouts which might possibly have been associated with his limited sphere and long life have their fascination. The intervening period of family existence when one's fathers were more often on the move is not half as attractive as that of the early beginnings when somehow we seem to feel that then and there in that atmosphere and those particular conditions and prospects our own family characteristics had for this country at least their first permanent setting.

In these recent years there has been much said and written about the abandoned farms of New England. In this discussion even Connecticut with all its prosperity and internal advantages may well share as one views with some touch of sadness the decayed and desolate homesteads found in several isolated sections of the state. Of course there is a clear explanation for this condition of things which no one can question. It is the solution of the great problem most wanted, whereby to restore to town and commonwealth an essential element of strength. The Governor of New Hampshire who inaugurated "Old Home Week" and saw it successfully established accomplished thereby a great step toward solving the question. For through that appeal to a delicate instinct which most of us feel, there came quick response; and the old tottering farm house afar away upon lonely hill that once was the center of so much joy and affection again clothed itself in much of its former beauty and freshness. There have been worthy instances of this sort in our own state where the ambitious son with that restless and resistless spirit of youth has gone forth from the parental roof in the wilds, and after the years of successful toiling that has produced its own weariness, returns at last satisfied to spend his remaining years, as also his hard accumulations, amidst the scenes and environments of early and visionary youth. Such fortunate men and wise have made the wilderness bloom and blossom as the rose.

The question of the abandoned farm seems to us at times to be more a question of the abandoned family than anything else. In other words a case wherein some well established family of to-day in the changing vicissitudes of our American life as is so common had lost all knowledge of its early career. Even the traditional had faded from view and that usual mainstay—a Bible record—but began a short and uninteresting story some two or three generations back with the bare facts of a birth, a marriage and the children; just where, it did not seem as if of enough consequence to state. There are, we feel sure, many such instances all over the land of old American families that through the changing years and circumstances have become detached from their early anchorage, while the effort to find it again has seemed so hopeless as to induce the feeling of utter despair.

It might seem therefore as if the disclosure of these early marriage records might serve a good purpose if they surely revealed the long hidden secret and fixed the locality in the minds and hearts of this generation.

In our last issue—Book IV—we had occasion in the Preface to refer to the bright prospects of some definite action by the state authorities to repair and save the old records scattered about; and could wish now it was our pleasure to report steady progress in that direction. The question seemed so vital and so completely removed from any thought of party prejudice that every member of the General Assembly might be presumed to have an interest as he had an interest in his own town's need.

A definite policy for the reconstruction of the old books seemed to be the most natural conclusion to draw from the facts in hand. From our view therefore it is a real disappointment to have to chronicle here that when the special commission had, after months of labor, made its interesting report, been given a hearing and had pressed its recommendations, said report met the same fate as many another unpopular though worthy cause. And so here seems to be the end of the suggestion which Governor Lounsbury so faithfully urged, with nothing apparently gained by the long discussion. The old records are now two years older than when this subject was first as a crying need advocated; while what is a more serious complication consists in the fact that in two old towns at least with records of very ancient date, a private corporation has seen fit to make complete abstracts of both land and probate for their own use, while the originals freely handled have suffered even more serious damage.

There would arise a very peculiar condition of things likely at last to awaken some of these conservative towns if this method were pursued to any great extent among us while the old originals (with no public copy) be left to decay and ultimately perish.

The records published herewith have for the most part been thoroughly verified and we can offer them as another contribution to the study of Connecticut genealogy. Of course there are the usual complications of varied spellings, and obscure chirography. These matters will surely correct themselves once the clue is established and the valued discovery effectually offset our seeming error.

TESTIMONIALS FROM THE PRESS.

The Brooklyn Daily Eagle.

The country is becoming so flooded with genealogical publications that any scheme for saving with laudable pride one's family history must be of interest. "The Record of My Ancestry," by Rev. Frederic W. Bailey, is a scheme in blank, and one of great simplicity, if not of equal simplicity at first sight. It is a handsome quarto, ruled for names, dates, and notes, with directions for the use of the same.

The Congregationalist.

The study of genealogy has been taken up in recent years in many quarters and with great zest. Local historical societies abound and devote large attention to genealogy, and a multitude of individuals are at work upon their family trees. There is no more fascinating hobby apart from the substantial value of its fruits. Its difficulties are very great, however, especially in respect to arrangement, such a work as that of Rev. F. W. Bailey, "The Record of My Ancestry" [$3.00], which presents a simple and sufficient plan, deserves to be widely used. If the explanations furnished are read with care its convenience becomes apparent. It contains places for small photographs, spaces for references and notes and, in general, is well adapted to its purpose.

The Living Church.

A well arranged book for the genealogy of one's family, by means of which posterity may be saved endless trouble if the book is properly kept and posted.

The Christian Leader.

Under the title of "The Record of My Ancestry," Rev. F. W. Bailey has made an ingenious and useful album for the purpose of enabling everyone to make up the record of his own ancestors. An increasing number of people are interested in genealogical researches and the study is of great fascination. There is no system so admirably adapted for this work as Mr. Bailey's book, simple, complete, easily understood. Mr. Bailey is his own agent and his book is having a large sale.

The Churchman.

This very ingenious and useful album is designed by Rev. Frederic W. Bailey, B. D. Its purpose is set forth in the preface; the designer found great difficulty in arranging the complicated records of his own genealogy; hence arose this labor-saving method which enables the compiler of ancestral history to simplify the process very materially. The system adopted is carefully explained, but is scarcely more than the easy use of blanks and spaces provided to one's hand.

N. B. No American Household is complete without this Family Record Book.

FREDERIC W. BAILEY, MANAGER.

Ancient Church and Town Records of Conn. R. I. and Mass. a specialty. Copies of old Connecticut Church Records secured at much expense enables us to find much of great value not accessible elsewhere. A large and increasing amount of original (verified) family data of various lines and names on hand for reference. Special researches made at moderate rates. Write us for information. Consult our references.

COPIES OF COATS OF ARMS, ETC. FURNISHED AT LOW RATES BY A WELL KNOWN HERALDIST.

The well-known fact of our endeavor to gather together copies of the old church and town records of Births, Baptisms and Marriages throughout the state prior to 1800 with the view of facilitating genealogical research has led to numerous letters of inquiry from various interested parties as to the present extent of our effort. For the information of all such, would say that up to the present time 1898, records of the following towns through the old churches principally have been more or less fully copied and are on file, additions constantly being made thereto.

Our aim is to secure only such as are not accessible in printed form thus to be of greater service to our patrons.

All these are at the service of patrons and friends who by the special application blanks desire our aid. Send for a copy or find one in every copy of the Photo-Ancestral Record, entitled "The Record of My Ancestry."
